The power of story in adapting outcome harvesting to different contexts

Chelsea Horváth, Founder Lionheart Data, LCC, Chris Allan, Executive Director Ajabu Advisors, Cesare Rossi, Evaluation Consultant, Reagan Ronald Ojok, Monitoring and Evaluation Specialist at Ministry of Water and Environment in Uganda.

Moderator: Carmen Wilson-Grau, OH Community facilitator

This is the first of three webinars to present the panels on OH that were part of this year's American Evaluation Association Conference.

This multi-paper session presents four examples of how Outcome Harvesting was applied in different sectors and regions, namely public health, digital development, and education in Africa, and Europe. Chelsea will share how OH was used to evaluate the impact of a public health management and leadership training program in Kenya to illustrate if and how graduates contributed to health system-level changes. Chris will describe how OH was adapted to the difficult conditions in which public health staff in the Democratic Republic of Congo work to evaluate the impact of a public health training program in the country. Cesare will discuss evaluating a public-private partnership aimed at reducing 'educational poverty' among youth in seven Italian regions using a combination of theory-oriented evaluation and OH. Reagan will discuss how OH was used to track and document the outcomes and successes of the UDB I Growth Accelerator program, which supports innovation start-ups in Uganda. OH facilitated storytelling as a means of communicating the program's success stories to a broader audience.
